

SOCIETY FOR SONG, YUAN, AND CONQUEST DYNASTIES STUDIES

Small Grants Program for 2022
Call for Proposals

The Society for Song, Yuan, and Conquest Dynasties Studies (SSYCDS) is pleased to announce funding for two categories of small grants to support research in any scholarly discipline on Chinese— as well as Khitan, Jurchen, Tangut, and Mongol— history, society, and culture from the early tenth to mid-fourteenth centuries.

1. Research and Publication Support Grants

These grants are intended to support scholars who plan to present their current projects through print or digital publication. These grants can be used to support research and publication expenses including (but not limited to) travel, database subscriptions, copy-editing, research assistance, programming assistance, data entry, scanning, photocopying, image reproduction fees, and publication subventions.

2. Conference and Workshop Support Grant

Because interactions within the scholarly community is so important to the life of the field and because funding to support conferences and workshop is scarce, especially at smaller institutions, the society offers a small grant to assist in the planning of a conference or workshop.

General Requirements:

These grants are intended to support research by scholars who hold the Ph.D. and are at any career stage, with priority given to non-tenured and junior scholars.

Eligibility:

Applicants must be members of the Society in good standing at the time of application. Information on membership can be found at <https://songyuan.org/membership.html>.

Research grant recipients are eligible to participate on Society sponsored panels and receive subventions for panel participation at the Association for Asian Studies Annual Meeting in March 2023.

Society Officers and Board Members are not eligible for grant funding.
